

RCT Express®

Now breaks out both roof and basement reconstruction costs

In support of the growing needs of Insurers to provide separate line items for roof coverings as well as finishes associated with finished basements, our industry-proven valuation platform RCT Express® now includes the ability to break out these items within a property's reconstruction cost estimate. This next generation of RCT Express, also modernizes the rules engine so that you can customize your valuation business rules.

Other industry firsts such as proprietary property imagery, integrated contents estimating, historic hail verification and premium pre-fill data gives Insurers the ability to quickly and easily calculate more accurate building and contents valuations, offer better products, and reduce inspection expenditures.

Why CoreLogic®?

RCT Express® provides users with a centralized delivery of structural risk assessment that leverages our eight decades of experience and unparalleled total component methodology of construction cost research and estimate development.

With RCT Express, CoreLogic delivers the reliable reconstruction cost estimating that carriers have come to rely on for their new business and renewal workflows.

Get the Whole Story®
