2018 Atlantic Hurricane Season Begins

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) has released its outlook for the 2018 Atlantic Hurricane Season which begins June 1st and will run through November 30th. NOAA's estimates indicate that a near to above normal season may be expected with a 75% chance of 10-16 named storms, including 5-9 hurricanes and 1-4 major hurricanes. Even before the official start of the season, Tropical Storm Alberto made landfall this week along Florida's panhandle. Alberto's heavy rains along the Gulf coast call to mind last year's unprecedented hurricane season and remind everyone of the importance of Hurricane preparedness, including the financial protection afforded by flood insurance.

National Flood Conference - Reminder

There is still time to register for this year's National Flood Conference which is taking place in Washington D.C. June 10-13. As we shared previously, this will be a great opportunity for attendees to participate in discussions with a great number of NFIP stakeholders relating to the future of the program. If you are planning to attend and have not done so already, please contact Scott Giberson directly at sgiberson@corelogic.com to arrange a meeting.
