NFIP Extended to January 19

Congress passed a Continuing Resolution last night which serves to extend the NFIP until January 19, 2018. The law serves as the mechanism for the continued funding of the federal government but does not make any reforms to the NFIP. Given the need for Congress to take further action prior to January 19, you may consider working with your government affairs department or appropriate trade association on outreach to Congress in support of the program and a further extension or reauthorization.

In addition to the stopgap measure to fund the government, yesterday the House passed a disaster aid package which would provide additional money for disaster recovery efforts in hurricane and wildfire affected states and Puerto Rico; however, the Senate did not vote on the legislation leaving it as another issue for consideration in January.

Congress adjourns for the holiday with both chambers returning January 3, 2018.
